

CONFLICT OF INTEREST POLICY

INTENT: To allow the readership to evaluate each editorial, review, and article with all the information required to reach an educated conclusion about the results presented.

SCOPE: This policy applies to author(s) submitting editorials, reviews, or manuscripts to the Journal of Clinical Sleep Medicine. Conflicts of interest may arise with the individuals or with members of their family (spouses or domestic partners and dependent children). Examples of potential conflicts requiring disclosure include but are not limited to:

1. Participation in research activities related to the subject matter of the manuscript supported by a for-profit business or granting agency whether or not the individual or family member has a financial interest. This support may be in the form of grants, gifts or awards, financial or otherwise.
2. Any relationships with any business related to the subject matter of the manuscript including directorships, trusteeships, management relationships or paid speaking engagements.
3. Personal financial interest in a business related to the subject matter of the manuscript exceeding $25,000 per year; including honoraria, consulting fees or any form of compensation. However this does not include investments in mutual funds or other vehicles in which the individual does not make management decisions.
4. Substantial gifts (greater than $500), discounted or free use of material or equipment provided by a business related to the subject matter of the manuscript with a market value exceeding $10,000.

These conflicts are of concern when the business entity stands to gain or lose based on scientific information published in the Journal. As the author may not know when this is the case, full disclosure of all relationships is recommended.

POLICY: Author(s) are required to disclose potential conflicts of interest by submitting the disclosure form for every submitted editorial, review, and manuscript. Substantive changes to the disclosure must be reported as they occur. Disclosures will be reviewed by Editor and the Journal of Clinical Sleep Medicine staff. This information will be listed within the article, but dollar amounts will not be included.
